

LETTER OF COMMITMENT

2018 UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME FRONTLINE SUPERVISION PROGRAM

Program Overview

The University of Notre Dame is committed to training ALL staff who supervise others to ensure a professional and values-based approach to leading people. To this end, Frontline Supervision (FLS) is a certificate program designed to develop the skills necessary to lead at the frontline of supervision at the University. Learning methods include case studies, small and large group discussions, and practice exercises. The program consists of eight sessions that offer maximum “how-to” skills which can be applied immediately on the job. The program begins with a kickoff, which is a pre-program orientation to understand responsibilities in reinforcing the competencies taught in the program, and culminates with a series summit where participants will present their capstone projects.

Corequisite and Attendance

Participants must have attended “ND Essentials for Managing People” workshop prior to, or during the FLS program. Participants must attend all eight sessions, the Summit, and have completed the corequisite to receive a certificate of completion. Participants and their managers are required to attend the series kickoff. Participants are also expected to attend the series summit. The participants’ managers are invited back for the closing reception immediately after the summit.
